

City Manager's Update

April 18, 2018

The proposed Water Reclamation Facility (WRF) is reaching a very critical point, and as such, is an appropriate time for the community to receive an update and provide input and ask questions.

We understand that community members are rightfully concerned about the estimated costs of the project, now in the $150M range. That is a significant cost for a community of our size. We are working to bring that cost down, while working to obtain outside subsidized loans and grants to reduce potential rate increases for our residents and business owners. There are also questions about environmental impacts, permitting requirements and other components of the project.

With that all in mind, the City is hosting a public forum on Wednesday, April 25th at 6:30p.m. at the Veterans Hall (209 Surf Street). We would like to use that time to provide an update on the project, discuss outside funding, and hear from invited representatives from the various regulatory agencies that have a role in permitting this project. Following the update, we will turn it over to the League of Women Voters to facilitate what we hope will be a good comments/question and answer session. We know you have questions and concerns, so please come and share them with us.

Thank you,
Scott Collins
City Manager
